FEDERALS ON VERGE OF FLIGHT TO UNITED STATES

FORCES TORN INTO REMNANTS

Line of Struggling Wounded Reaches Border and Horrifying Scenes Tell Tale of Slaughter.

Presidio, Tex., Jan. 1.—The northern division of the Mexican federal army at Ojinaga, Mex., with its 11 generals, other officers and about 4000 soldiers, after a merciless three-day attack by General Ortega's 6000 rebels, tonight appeared to be on the verge of fleeing in disorder across the river into the United States.

The ending of the Ojinaga battle, attended by the most horrifying scenes witnessed on the border in the present Mexican revolution, was said to have in store only one possible result—the momentarily expected flight of the whole federal army to American soil.

With a line of struggling wounded at the border to indicate the extent of the carnage and deserters already appearing in numbers, Maj. M. N. McNamee, commanding the border patrol, made every plan in anticipation of the flight.

Less than 500 cavalymen, mostly from the 15th United States cavalry, form the border patrol here. To this small body of American soldiers would fall the task of surrounding and disarming the foreign soldiers. The ability of the American soldiers to handle the refugees was based on the assumption that the rebels would pursue the federals merely to the river.

"I expect at any time during the night that the greater part of the federal army, possibly 2000 or 3000, may be forced across the river. I have made dispositions to disarm and hold them if this takes place."

Loss Estimated Heavy.
This was the message which Major McNamee sent out today. Major McNamee's reference to "two or more thousand" implied a loss in dead or wounded of the rest of the 1000.

A careful estimate placed the wounded on both sides at 1000. Most of the wounded were left on the battlefield. The less disabled succeeded in reaching the river and were cared for by the Red Cross on this side.

Scores of unharmed federal deserters came to the river, and in defiance of the American patrol, crossed with their arms. All these were disarmed and forced back to the Mexican side.

More than 200 rifles, other arms and ammunition thus were taken from the fugitives. It was impossible to learn accurately the number of dead and the belief that it would be great was based on the number of wounded. Many were believed to have died through lack of medical attention, as neither federals or rebels are equipped with any first hospital service, and the Red Cross officials on this side were not permitted to ford the river, even under a Red Cross flag.

Hospital Supplies Run Low.
Supplies of bandages and hospital equipment were needed. It was expected this want would be relieved by the arrival of more Red Cross nurses and physicians who were coming from Marfa, the nearest railway station, 67 miles away.

Those who ventured to help the wounded from the river risked the danger of being shot. A few shots fired by the rebels fell on the American side, north of Presidio, but no one was injured. Major McNamee warned Gen. Ortega that any further firing across the river might entail grave consequences.

So far Major McNamee has adhered to a policy of sending back all of the unwounded combatants. Should all of the federals come across they could be disarmed, but they might be permitted to remain on this side on grounds of humanity, after they had been placed under temporary arrest. The latter disposition of the prisoners would be in the hands of higher authorities.

The inclination of the deserters to carry their guns to this side with them caused some uneasiness. In view of the expected arrival of so many foreign soldiers at a point where the United States border patrol is not numerous, it was hoped that the federals, if they came, would cross without any unexpected incident and that the rebels would not pursue them unnecessarily.

Rebel Attack Merciless.
As for the battle at Ojinaga, our side back from the river, it proceeded unintermittently with the federals confined in and fighting from the adobe huts in the village, while the rebels, always drawing closer, fired artillery and small guns from the hills and approaches.

Soon after daylight the federals made a desperate attempt to rally. They even extended their line of fire outward, but this brought only an increasing firing by the rebels that sent the defenders back to their inner defenses. Thereafter the relative position of the opposing forces remained much the same, with General Ortega driving in shot and shell from three sides, while Gen. Francisco Castros federals fired from what vantage points they had within the house central, the customs house and trenches. Never in border history had there been a scene equal to that of the federal wounded and deserters, who scrambled to reach the United States, while behind them poured a pouring shower of shells and bullets.

Reg Americans for Protection.
The river's edge was a ragged fringe of smoke-begrimed, muffled and half-naked soldiers, some of them rushing pell-mell into the river, some crying from the pain of their wounds, others crawling because of shattered limbs over rocks and cacti, some greedily stopping to drink the muddy water, and all begging the Americans on the opposite side for shelter from the horrible turmoil from which they had fled.

The river bed at this point is formed of soft mud, with water in the middle about waist deep. At one point 200 federals, all carrying arms, waded across. They were surrounded by a handful of United States troops, disarmed and forced back. The wounded were picked up as soon as they reached this shore or if a wounded soldier got stuck in the mud he was dragged out and placed in the care of the Red Cross.

A soldier who had his arm shot off, another limping with a wounded foot, still more who had actually crawled to the water, a federal lieutenant bearing the uniform of his rank, a fugitive with a bunch of yellow fusels on his arm, a bare-footed private who had lost his shoes, all formed part of the hobbling line that came down to the river.

The protest of the unwounded federals against being forced back into Mexico was pitiable. The deserters went back, but wailing as they went that they would surely be killed without their arms.

It was the fact that there were so many federal deserters, as much as the progress of the rebel fighting, that convinced Major McNamee early in the day that the retreat to the United States of the whole federal army was inevitable.

The little mission church on this side of the Rio Grande was made the asylum of the wounded, above which the Red Cross flag floated.

BOSTON MAYORALTY MUDDLE DUE TO LAW

Boston, Jan. 1. Charges of fraud in the filing of nomination papers for candidates for mayor in the coming city election were given official attention today when the ballot law commission began an investigation. Irregularities in the signatures of the papers of both candidates Congressman James M. Curley and Thos. J. Kenny were alleged in pellious held before the commission.

The papers filed by former Congressman John A. Kellher who later withdrew from the contest and Ernest B. South who failed to get enough signatures to secure a place on the ballot also were examined. The commission likewise had placed before it Mr. South's petition that he be certified as a mayoralty candidate.

"STOP THIEF."

Stop Thief is the annual title of a new funny farce that Cohen and Harris will present at the Portsmouth Theatre on Thursday evening January 8.

The story of Stop Thief has to do with William Carr, a millionaire general timesoverhears a kidnapping. His immediate family knew of this monstrous inclination to steal and are constantly worried for fear the chosen guarded secret will be discovered. The millionaire's daughter is engaged to be married, and her intended husband, though she is ignorant of it, is also a victim of the same morbid mania that possesses her father.

The day before the wedding the young man calls and being shown a valuable collection of wedding gifts that has arrived is immediately possessed with the inclination to steal them as is also his father-in-law to be who already has been caught exercising his mania and compelled to put

Pensacola has been selected by the navy department as a winter headquarters for the aeronautic camps and the battleship Mississippi has been ordered to leave the reserve fleet at Philadelphia to Annapolis to take on board the members of the corps and all of the material necessary for the aeronautic work to be done this winter, to carry them to Pensacola. The Mississippi will be used by the aeronauts in experiments with hydroplanes.

END OF COPPER STRIKE IN SIGHT

Officers in Touch With Situation Now Predict an Early Settlement.

Houghton, Mich., Jan. 1.—A feeling of optimism regarding the possibility of a speedy settlement of the strike of copper miners developed steadily today. Those officially in touch with the situation were inclined to predict that the struggle which began last July might be ended in the next few days.

John H. Denmore, collector of the federal department of labor, conferred with O. N. Hilton, chief counsel for the Western Federation of Miners, and Claude O. Taylor, president of the Michigan State Federation of Labor. Later he had a brief talk with Allen F. Rees, attorney for the Calumet and Hecla Mining Company. After these conferences Mr. Denmore intimated considerable progress had been made toward reaching common ground between the warring interests.

In view of prospects of an early settlement of the strike, it was understood that the mining companies had practically decided to hold in abeyance their determination not to re-employ any strikers after tomorrow.

The plans for mediation, contemplated by Mr. Denmore, were delayed somewhat by the fact that many of the representatives of the mining companies were absent on account of the holiday and because it was found necessary to refer several of the fundamental proposals to Charles H. Meyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners, by telegraph.

Guesses as to the details of the plans centered about a belief that in some manner Mr. Denmore had found a method of settling the strike without requiring the companies to communicate even indirectly with the Western Federation and consequently without eliminating the union from the conference. Some pointed out that the fact that the companies had heard the views of the federation's representatives showed a distinct change from their former uncompromising determination not to recognize even the existence of the organization.

Meetings of opposing factions were held in Houghton within a few blocks of each other. Unionism and Socialism were preached in a hall crowded with strikers and their sympathizers, and resolutions were adopted condemning the actions of the mine owners and the deportation of Meyer and urging a congressional investigation of the strike with the view to ultimate public ownership of the mines.

The other heard orators who deplored the introduction of Socialistic tenets of the copper country. Its attendance was somewhat less than that of the union affair. It was stated that a few men agreed to give up the strike.

STATE NOW HAS A NATIONAL FOREST RESERVE

Concord, Jan. 1.—The United States government starts off the new year with a federal forest reserve in New Hampshire and a few owners of the property purchased have nearly $100,000 on their hands in payment of the same. The land acquired is in the town of Benton, and was the property of the Pike Woodlands company and E. Hermon Pike. The money was paid over yesterday through officials of the department of agriculture at Washington. This is the first tract that the government has actually secured control of through the Weebs bill.

It is understood that the forest reserve service will immediately proceed to cut trails through the property, and establish fire patrol stations and do everything possible to protect the reserve from injury by fire. Some of the mature timber will be cut and sold for commercial purposes, the cutting being conducted in such a manner as to benefit the growing timber about it.

The tract of land is very accessible being only a short distance from the Glencliff station of the Boston and Maine railroad, and is in what is known as the Moosilauke section.

The actual amount received in payment of the property was $93,705.19, but of this $10,000 was with held to cover the cost of several small pieces of property where the title was in dispute.

The payment of the money for this property and its acquisition by the government would have taken place months ago but for the opposition of Governor Feltner, who through the attorney general filed a ridiculous set of exceptions on behalf of the state, and which were thrown out of the United States court by Judge Edgar A. Aldrich, before whom they were argued.

TERROR RULES ALL CANNES

Cannes, France, Jan. 1.—A further daring attempt at assassination was made last night by the criminals at the "phantom bandits" who are inflicting the country districts around Cannes. They fired two shots through a window of a large villa in the suburb of Raoulin belonging to a prominent Parisian banker and the bullets just missed two ladies seated at a table. The bandits then disappeared and no further trace of them was discovered although the district swarms with detectives specially detailed from Paris and Marseilles.

The terror inspired by these mysterious night outrages of the criminals who recently killed one farmer and shot of another has attained such proportions that nothing will induce the peasants to leave their houses after dark. Doors and windows have been heavily barricaded everywhere in the vicinity and the prevailing fear is spreading even among the foreign visitors in this winter resort.

The police authorities believe the bandits form a part of a gang that terrorized the district for years and whose operations were stopped about a year ago by the arrest of several of their leaders who are now awaiting trial.

MUST HAVE 1914 AUTO NUMBER PLATES TO RIDE

Local automobile owners, who neglected to secure their license plates for 1914, were obliged yesterday to keep their automobiles in their garage until they were secured. Many did not think of the new plates until it was too late and have had to sit in the rush at the office of the Secretary of States.

Under the law no one can operate their car without the 1914 license tag after the first of January.

Secretary of State Pearson is prepared for a strict enforcement of the new law. Every car which is used for delivery or hiring purposes must bear a license on which is enrolled the word "Commercial." The number is preceded by two 0's.

The garage license will be the same with the letter before and after the numbers. During the past year it was not necessary to have an especial license for a taxicab or touring car which might be hired. Garage owners took advantage of this and succeeded in deriving quite a bit of extra change by letting their demonstration cars in different parties. The new rule practically eliminates all of these advantages, for in order to secure a commercial license ten dollars extra must be paid.

The 1914 licenses are of the same color and design as the past year. With the exception of the new arrangement of the numbers, it would be hard for an officer to distinguish one from the other. However, the word "Commercial" which is printed just below the figures, makes it easily discernible whether the machine is a garage car or is used for business purposes.

The chauffeurs' badges are considerably different from those of last year. Instead of being oval, they are shaped like a diamond and are somewhat larger. The new arrangement will make it easy for the police officers to notice whether the driver is getting by on an old badge or not.

No advance has been made on the price of license, and no new rules have been enforced about taking the examinations.

AMERICAN SUBMARINES FROM FRANCE?

Submarine torpedo boats for the United States navy may in the future be built under foreign patents. Several months ago Mr. Daniels, the Secretary of the Navy, was informed by the officials of the La Beauf Torpedo Company that their concern might have to close its doors. In order not to be left with only one bidder, the Electric Boat Company, which manufactures the Holland type of craft, Mr. Daniels entered into negotiations with the Schneider La Beauf Submarine Boat Company of France, with a view to purchasing its type of boat for the United States navy.

Mr. Daniels has recommended eight submarines to Congress as a necessary part of this year's building programme. He has definitely stated that he will accept no bids that are not offered in fair competition. A great deal of correspondence has been exchanged regarding the designs, advantages and possible purchase of the French type of vessels. The La Beauf Company has made Mr. Daniels some very flattering offers, and has guaranteed to build vessels on American soil with American material and labor.

Practically every navy in the world except that of the United States has one or more of the La Beauf type of submarines. According to the belief of the American naval submarine experts the La Beauf type has demonstrated its superiority over all others. The Diesel internal combustion engine is used as a method of propulsion. A submarine built in Greece by the La Beauf Company made a run of 1000 miles at sea without a parent ship, entered a port, took on a supply of fuel and food, and within seven hours departed on a 600-mile run to Africa, where it arrived ready for instant service. The General Board of the navy, of which Admiral Dewey is president, and the Secretary of the Navy are interested in the La Beauf another day or two probably will pass before the trouble is remedied. The steel pipes were placed and water was pumped through them for two hours then the packing between the pipes and the ends of the old concrete conduit was forced out and the pumps had to stop.

CUTTING ICE VERY EARLY

The ice harvest at Manchester has opened propitiously in the opinion of the ice dealers. With the winter season scarcely under way Manchester ice dealers are getting their first ice. They have already cut a better quantity of ice than at any time last winter. The ice cut is eight inches deep and is said to be a record cut for this time of the winter.

The celebration of New Year's eve is becoming more prominent every year and a real celebration is promised for 1915.

Harold MacGrath's Latest and Greatest Serial Story Starts in Next Sunday's Globe

January 4, 1914

Harold MacGrath, the famous author of "The Man on the Box," has written a new story. It is a story so intensely human in its situations, so unusual in its setting, and is told so fascinatingly by this master writer of fiction that it holds you spellbound from the opening sentence to the happy finale on the last page. Critics who have read the advance sheets pronounce it, the greatest novel that MacGrath has ever written.

"The Adventures of Kathlyn"

When the manuscript of this great story was finished the dramatic rights were purchased at once by the Selig Polyscope Co., a famous playwright prepared it for the motion picture stage, and the play is now being witnessed by millions of people in leading motion picture theatres all over the country, with the beautiful Kathlyn Williams, the greatest of all motion picture actresses—playing the part of the hero. The play is so long that it takes 26 full-length reels to present it, and it is therefore being shown in installments, two reels at a time, at intervals of two weeks apart. It is the longest and most pretentious drama ever put on the motion picture stage.

So now you can get double the enjoyment from this fascinating story that you've ever gotten from a novel before. For you cannot only follow the heroine in the story through all her wonderful adventures—from her beautiful home in California to the dense jungles of Allaha and among the savage tribes of Hindustan—but you can also actually see her in your favorite motion picture theatre—see Kathlyn herself with your own eyes in every hairbreadth adventure and thrilling escape from jungle beasts and Hindu Brigand. Installments of story will appear in the Globe every Sunday, keeping pace with the dramatized version as it appears at the motion picture theatres.

Portsmouth, N. H., Friday, January 2, 1914.

An Indefensible Attitude.

The position taken by the suffragists on the question of the income tax will fail to commend itself to all right thinking men and women. This is that taxation without representation is tyranny, and that therefore any woman having an income affected by the new law will be morally justified in failing to comply with that law.

This is poor reasoning, if reasoning it can be called. It is the duty of all persons, whether having the franchise or not, to respect and obey the laws of the land. If any law is unjust it should be amended or repealed, not defied or evaded.

It is announced by the Suffragists' Congressional union that it is not planned to organize widespread resistance to the income tax law, and yet coupled with this statement is the declaration that the union will be in sympathy with any one making resistance to the collection of the tax, who has not the right of franchise.

But why is the collection of a tax on incomes more unjust than the collection of taxes on real property? For years women have been paying taxes on real estate without complaint and with no thought of resisting the processes of the law, but now that a tax on incomes has been provided for the claim is advanced that to collect such a tax without extending the ballot to women will be unjust and tyrannical.

But women are not alone in having to submit to taxation without representation. Property is taxed in all parts of the country whose owners do not reside in the cities or towns where the property is located, and who have nothing whatever to say about how the tax money shall be expended. The property of minors is taxed regardless of their inability to vote, but the benefits of government and the protection of the laws are extended to all, and consequently all having taxable property or incomes should be willing to bear their share of the public expenses.

To compare this resistance to the income tax on the part of women because they do not have the ballot to the "Boston tea party," as some have been bold enough to do, is a very weak effort to justify the action. The cases are by no means parallel and the suffragists will make a grave mistake if they convince themselves that they are and act upon that conviction.

Mrs. Ella Spencer Mussey, honorary dean of the Washington College of Law, in commenting on the matter very sensibly says: "Women should remember that they have the protection of the government, and it is only right that they should contribute to the support of a system of law and order in which they share the benefit." Mrs. Mussey further points out the inconsistency of the women who oppose the operation of the income tax law, the law having been enacted with the aid of legislators from states where women have the ballot.

The suffragists should think twice before deciding to disregard the law of the land. Compliance with the law is not only in line with good morals and good citizenship, but adds dignity and strength to the efforts of those who seek the alteration or elimination of any law.

An exchange says: "The public does not object to good looking policemen, but Portsmouth, N. H., has discharged its one police woman because she was too good looking. That is the reason assigned." Good looks are not the only qualifications required for a police officer whether male or female. Whether Miss Bash's discharge was due to her attractiveness or other reasons, we will leave that to some of her close friends to decide.

Last year was a great year for crops in this country, yet the department of agriculture holds out little hope of any material reduction in prices, even with the reduced tariff rates. Apparently people who insist upon living in this country must continue to settle for what they eat.

Scientists now declare that the weight of the brain is no criterion of its potency. No, what it accomplishes is far more important than its weight, and the same is true of the whole body of a man.

Former President Taft endorses the church-going movement, but it will have to reach men of a different class before it becomes very much of a social "uplift."

Now they are trying to ship liquor into Maine by the sloop load in order, of course, that the Pine Tree denizen may be able to take a "schooner" when he feels inclined.

Emil Zerkowitz, banker and duelist of Austria-Hungary, has been admitted to the United States under a sort of Pankhurst probation. He must get out in one month.

The New Year has been properly ushered in, and now the thing to do is to write upon its pages a record of which we shall not be ashamed when 1914 is ushered out.

Tom Taggart is still a recognized force in the democratic politics of the Hoosier state.

The Ladies' Social Union of the Christian church entertained on Wednesday evening. The affair was in the nature of a supper and social and was in charge of Mrs. Frank Rand, Mrs. Mary J. Varrell and Mrs. Joseph Becker.

Miss S. Minnette Foss recently gave a Christmas party to her pupils of the pianoforte. The pupils presented a very fine recital.

Miss Maude H. Thwing of Georgetown, Mass. is the guest of friends at East Rye during her Christmas vacation.

The Jolly Young Farmers of Rye gave a dancing party last evening at Rye Town Hall with a good attendance of young people. The hall was attractively decorated with college pennants, almost every university being represented. Music was furnished by Drake and Fritz. A most enjoyable evening was passed. A buffet lunch was served throughout the evening.

NEVER MIND

When childhood cares assailed his heart,
Her choice was always kind,
As lovingly she took his part
And said: "There, never mind."

The boy who once had boyish cares
And wept over little woes
Now dabbles in the world's affairs,
And faces heartless foes.

But when the skies are dark today
He may not turn to find Her comfort and to her say
"Ah, well, dear; never mind."

The grieving boy had need of cheer,
What of the man who feels
When he is crowded to the rear
Or plagued by vain regrets?

Relieved of care, she sleeps away,
The man remains behind,
And there is no one left to say,

TOO MANY CHILDREN

are pale and frail—backward in studies—with pinched faces and poor blood—their minds and bodies are actually starved because their regular food does not nourish.

Such children need Scott's Emulsion above everything else; it contains nature's rarest life-giving fats; it is essentially food value—blood-food and bone-food, free from wine, alcohol or harmful drug.

Scott's Emulsion often builds many times its weight in solid flesh—its medicinal, tonic and nutritive properties make all good food do good.

PLAN TO COVER 10,000 MILES

Bank Committee Will Have Office on Wheels for Weeks.

Washington, Jan. 1.—Although plans for the long western trip of the reserve bank organization committee have not been completed, some of the preliminary steps taken indicate that the undertaking will be the unique in the history of the government. The committee expects to have an office on wheels for more than a month, and in order to insure the safety of its records and documents on the 10,000 mile journey a steel car of the latest type has been obtained.

Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo and Secretary of Agriculture Houston, the committee, will live aboard this car most of the time; will go over the testimony taken in the 12 western cities which they are to visit, and try to keep up with the mass of correspondence that will be forwarded to them from Washington. Each will take his own private secretary with him, and besides there will be at least four stenographers a couple of messengers and possibly a lawyer from the treasury department. This will make a little government army, surpassed in trips in this sort only by the suite which accompanies a President of the United States on his travels.

The currency law put $100,000 at the disposal of the committee in reaching a determination of the boundary lines of reserve districts and in locating reserve cities. By making use of a special car the committee hopes to make the trip much more cheaply than if it were compelled to use the ordinary means of travel. Moreover they expect to have at their disposal an office where they can retire and avoid persistent hooters, urging the claims of their offices for reserve banks.

Keep Records Up To Minute

The plan contemplates keeping the records of the public hearings in the 12 cities up to the minute so that the chief officers will be able to compare the arguments made for or against various cities as they travel.

When Washington is reached on the return trip it is hoped that the records will be in such shape that all the testimony can be laid before the federal board at once if that body has been organized by the President. The reserve board had power to review the decision of the organization committee and it has been decided that all of the acts influencing the committee to its decisions be available when the district cities and lines are announced. The committee starts upon its work Monday with hearings in New York. It is not the present intention to make use of the special car on the trip to New York or on the voyage to Boston which follows immediately. The office on wheels will not be occupied until the middle of the month when the committee starts for Chicago and the west.

Passengers to Portsmouth this winter by the Atlantic Shore R. R. will yet be obliged to qualify as members of the Appalachian Mountain Club if they hope to reach Market street from the ferry landing without danger to life and limb. Its a choice between the steep slippery grade of the roadway and narrow stone steps clogged with ice, too often guttless of sand or gravel. Such a condition of things in the only approach to the business section of the city cannot fail to act as a serious detriment to trade during the winter months.

CURRENT OPINION

Cowardice in the American Dollar; New Currency Law Expected to Remedy It.

Bankers I know and on whose opinion I rely want corrective currency legislation as soon as possible. They believe no time should be lost in passing legislation that will give the people greater confidence in their banking system and that will open the way for the average man to have equal opportunity with every other man in the use of capital and credit.

I have no criticism of the American dollar for the luxury or comfort that may honestly be got out of it. My criticism is of the bluff and cowardice in the dollar. When a time of money stringency comes the banks call in the money they have loaned because they fear they will have to pay the money they have borrowed from their depositors.

The whole country should and will welcome a speedy re-enforcement of the currency system that will effectually take this cowardice out of the dollar and make it a thing to be depended upon in time of stress.—Thomas Riley Marshall, Vice President of the United States.

PORTSMOUTH THEATRE PROGRAMME

For Friday and Saturday
The Price of Human Lives—An Anti-Tuberculosis Film.

This picture strikes straight at an evil which is entering millions of homes in the guise of a blessing. There are no milder men on earth than those who are directly interested in the manufacture and sale of patent medicines. They commit more murder than all the gunmen, Mexicans, desperadoes and infanticides put together, and they are far more dangerous because they are incurable. Will interest everyone, especially the doctors. (Don't Miss It. One Real)

Sophie's New Foreman—Essenay Comedy.

This comedy is a sure one for the laughs. It teases with hilarious situations. Featuring Augustus Carney as "AKAL" like.

ACT—Sayhaya—Acrobatic Novelty. The First Christmas—Edison Drama.

A magnificent presentation of the greatest event in Christian history. Miss Mary Fuller is featured.

ACT—The Durand Family—Singing Talking and Music.

A Foul and Fearful Plot—Biograph Comedy.

She had come back to the shack to get her $40,333,333,333, left by her uncle, Truberranizer.

The Troublesome Mole
Is on the same reel. She calls up Dr. Sockum to cure the mole.

The Foot-Print Cure—Kalem Drama
The mob ising for an innocent man's life, and the noble attempt of the boy he has aided to save him, are two of the breathless incidents.

FEATURE for Monday and Tuesday: "The House of Discord"—Biograph in two parts.

EDUCATIONAL NOTES

Vocational guidance has been introduced into the school system of Connecticut by a recent law.

Credit for Bible study is given in the North Dakota High schools. A hundred students passed the state examination last year.

Sons of farmers in Down and Antrim counties, Ireland are named as the beneficiaries of a recent educational bequest of a million dollars.

Two carpenters and a plumber from England have recently been traveling in Belgium. They were awarded vocational scholarships by means of which they are investigating old and new methods of house construction.

Many cities hesitate to start open-air schools because of the supposed expense, particularly in feeding. In Green Bay, Wis., the cost of feeding in the open air school has been found to be only 5 1-3 cents per day, or $8 a year for each child.

A one year course in tanning has been established by Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, N. Y., in cooperation with the National Association of Tanners. The course is for men already employed in the tanning industries or high school students without practical experience who wish to take up tanning.

Los Angeles, Cal., are instructed in the responsibilities of American citizenship through the social center. Recognition Day services are held at the close of each term of school. Says the social center report: "All the new citizens who have received their second papers within the six months are especially invited to a banquet given by prominent citizens as hosts. Later there is a public meeting in the Auditorium. The program consists of addresses by lending citizens, city, county, and state officials, patriotic music, motion pictures, and the ceremony of extending the right hand of citizenship."

The Herald appears to be a leader in the local news field.

LIND ARRIVES AT PASS CHRISTIAN

President and Envoy Will Hold Conference Today—Secrecy Surrounds the Envoy's Visit.

Pass Christian, Miss., Jan. 1.—John Lind, personal representative of President Wilson in Mexico, arrived here from Vera Cruz aboard the scout cruiser Chester tonight, but he did not leave the vessel. He will come ashore early tomorrow for a conference with the President.

The Chester arrived at Ship Island, eight miles south of here at 1:45. She did not attempt to transfer her passengers to the Winona, the United States revenue cutter, which has been waiting there.

The President had waited for some word from the Chester, but not until ten did he receive messages from the navy department announcing that the cruiser had reported 25 miles from ship island, and would arrive at 9:35.

Mr. Wilson's desire to avoid publicity in connection with the envoy's visit was emphasized today, not only by the reticence of everyone in the party, but by the anonymous movement of the revenue cutter Winona.

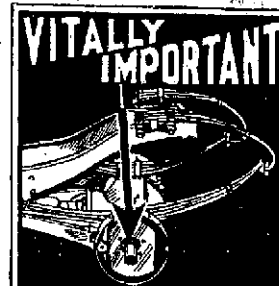

After spending thirty hours outside of Ship Island waiting for the Chester, the cutter finally came in at dusk tonight.

As she steamed towards the coast, the word rapidly spread that the Chester had arrived and had transferred her distinguished passengers at Ship Island. When the Winona dropped anchor a mile away, Lieut. Howell of the cutter who had been waiting the horizon all day with glasses, put out in a 20 foot launch.

A crowd had collected, moving picture machines were set up, camera men were ready, and small boys shot off firecrackers in celebration of the occasion. One of the President's secret service men had arrived by a White House motor and waited expectantly.

Slowly the little boat drew up at the gangway. Then only Lieut. Howell appeared. He entered into a whispered consultation with the President's representative, and the latter rushed to the nearest telephone. On returning he held another conversation with Lieut. Howell and the launch went back to the Winona which again put out to sea.

It looks as though the enlisted men were at last to have a good place to call their own while here.

The full floating axle—and the semi floating axle—all need adjustment of their bearings and thorough inspection—for flaws in manufacture often show up after a season's use.

NAMED REFEREE IN BANKRUPTCY

Thomas F. Clifford Succeeds
F. E. Shurtleff in First New Hampshire District.

Concord, N. H., Jan. 1.—Judge Edgar Aldrich this afternoon appointed Thomas F. Clifford referee in bankruptcy for the first district in New Hampshire, comprising the counties of Merrimack, Hillsborough, Rockingham, Sullivan and Cheshire, to succeed Pres-mont E. Shurtleff, who resigned to take the position of clerk of the Supreme court for Merrimack county on the death of his brother, the late Amos J. Shurtleff.

Mr. Clifford was born in Westworth in 1871. His education was gained in the public schools of Concord and at the Boston University Law School.
During his residence in Concord he was actively identified with the National Guard and on the breaking out of the war with Spain enlisted in Co.
B, 1st New Hampshire Volunteers. He was commissioned first lieutenant and at the expiration of his term was mustered out as captain. During the stay of the regiment at Chicamauga he was acting brigadier commissary on the staff of Brig. Gen. John N. Andrews.

He has always been active in republican politics. He was assistant clerk and clerk of the state senate from 1897 to 1903 and secretary of the republican state committee from 1900 to 1904.
Since his removal to Franklin he has served for eight years as solicitor of Merrimack county, judge of the Franklin Police Court for five years and solicitor of Franklin for four years.
He represented that city in the constitutional convention in 1912 and also in the legislature of 1913.

Mr. Clifford is a Mason, a Sir Knight of Mt. Horeb Commandery, K. T., of Concord, and a member of the Woonohatch club of this city. He is married and has one son.

CELEBRATE THEIR EMANCIPATION

conditions that are to be met are to be comprehended are to be annihilated and out of them the best results produced by the colored people of Portsmouth.
Nor shall I be anxious this evening to carry you far off save in some small measure of illustrations and to tell you what others have done. Bilinate tables of vital statistics of the race Hampton and Tuskegee. The Negro his rise and progress commensu-rable as they may be. Not even the fact that at the Harvard Class day the orator was a member of our race. But I am not going to cross the line into Massachusetts but talk to you about Portsmouth and the problem that is before us here.

Some over fifty years ago there lived here a gentleman named Rev.
Daniel Austin a Unitarian clergyman wealthy a thorough gentleman educated and refined an extensive traveler a profound student of public affairs and of men and measure. During his life he visited meetings held by the colored people of this city at the South ward room and thus became interested in them. In the neighborhood of 1875 this eminent clergyman passed away and when his last will was read the seventh bequest of that document was:

Extract from Will of Daniel Austin
"I give and bequeath to the Overseers of the Poor in said Portsmouth and their successors the sum of Five Hundred Dollars in trust to keep the same safely invested and annually to apply the income thereof to furnish to the colored population of said Portsmouth (believed to number at this time about twenty-seven persons in all) the means of effectively celebrating the successive anniversaries of Emancipation Day proclaimed by President Lincoln in the year 1863.

Said income to be expended under the direction of said Overseers or a Committee thereof.

This bequest means that an opportunity was left us to celebrate fittingly one of the greatest events in the eighteenth century emancipation day
Jan. 1 1863.

To my mind Rev. Daniel Austin had in his mind the moral and social as well as the religious advancement of the colored people of Portsmouth. The twenty-seven here at that time had now reached about 250. A part of the body politic owning some property and making some progress along all lines.
There is some danger in our mistaking license for liberty. Merely having a good time over again a consciousness of the more grave and sterner responsibilities of citizenship. Not any moral social or intellectual advancement was ever made by people who per more emphasis upon the dance and the cake walk than upon his church and the church of the living God. Daniel Austin left not his money for that purpose. This cosmopolitan this friend of the friendless would open by his legacy for the black man to be sober and to let him and while key alone save his money serve his God; to be true to his own best interest and those around him. How can we do this? First by placing a higher estimate upon our personal character; second by self-respect; third by loyalty to truth and right. God helps the man who helps himself and we should be careful to preserve our manhood and womanhood and our character should not me for sale even at election time. By cooperation and centralization of our efforts in business and in social life as well; by an active interest in the religious world.
We should build a church here of our own and take our place high in the respect of everybody. Daniel Austin and his bequest has done his part.
What will we do to solve the problem ourselves?

At the conclusion of the program supper was served with the following menu:

Cold Ham Chicken
Potato Salad Olives Rolls Pickles
Ice Cream and Cake Coffee
The committee in charge were George M. King, chairman; H. B. Hyton G. H. Straughan Samuel Watson and Mr. James C. Slaughter.

OBSERVED THE NEW YEAR.

The Portsmouth Athletic Club held a New Year's party at their home on Thursday evening and was largely attended. Music and games were enjoyed, at the conclusion of which an oyster supper was served. The affair was in charge of the officers of the club and was most enjoyable.

The first chorus rehearsal will be held next Monday evening.

MISS PATCH WAS SANTA CLAUS

Members of K. F. G. Club of Kittery Point Have Enjoyable Time.

The annual Christmas tree of the K.
F. G. Club of ladies, of Kittery Point, was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Miss Alice Noyes Patch, and the occasion, like those that have preceded it, was one of the pleasantest gatherings ever held by this club. The gift tree was in the living room and was indeed a handsome sight, being laden with a gift from each lady to all the fellow club members, 64 in all. The room was appropriately decorated and looked very nice. The hostess acted as Santa Claus and distributed the gifts from the tree, after which the company adjourned to the dining room, where, after the toast, "Our Club," was drank, all sat down and partook of a most appetizing luncheon consisting of consomme, hot rolls, oysters, grape juice, roast chicken, creamed potatoes, mashed, oysters, celery, cranberry sauce,
English plum pudding with hard sauce, ice cream with chocolate sauce, asorted cookies, coffee. The table was tastefully arranged and many compliments were showered on Miss Patch on the decorations.

A pleasant hour was passed around the festive board, after which goodbyes were said and there passed into history another one of the good times for which the K. F. G. Club is famous.

Those present were: Alice Noyes Patch, Mary Favour Hoyt, Gertrude
Bray Kimball, Jeanne Ferguson Berry,
Elizabeth Berry Clark, Grace Forman Patch, Annabel Ames Tobey, Helen

HUNDREDS KILLED IN BATTLE ON THE MEXICAN BORDER

Wounded Crawl Across River to the American Side for Treatment-- Rebels Have the Federals Surrounded.

Presidio, Texas, Jan. 1.—The battle of Ojinaga, Mex., between the Northern division of the Federal army and the rebels continued this morning. The rebels continued to progress all night, having been in progress all night. Five or six hundred rebels had already been killed and the wounded were in excess of that number. Horrific fighting was witnessed on the American side before daylight. The wounded soldiers with shattered arms, legs shot off and injuries that later proved fatal, struggled through the river and pleaded to the American soldiers for help. All the physicians and medical supplies available here were placed at the service of the disabled Federals. Before daylight more than 200 wounded had sought relief on this side. Some of these were badly injured that they begged the American soldiers to kill them.

From the war-torn little village of Ojinaga, back a mile from the river there came what appeared to be an endless file of wounded. The fight on the border here had the appearance of being most the sanguinary conflict of the present revolution. Federal deserters also came to the river in great number indicating that the bulk of Huerta's army was dissolved to give up. All the deserters who were not wounded, however, were charmed on this side and sent back by Major McNamee, commanding the United States border patrol. Major McNamee has more than 200 guns which he has taken from deserters. During the night, the grunting of the wounded on the battlefield on the opposite side of the river could be heard by the American cavalrymen. The firing in the darkness seemed to be heavier than it had yet been.

All women, children and non-combatants of Ojinaga came to the river and were taken to the American side. The Little Red Cross headquarters on this side where the Federal wounded are being cared for now is as active as a field hospital on a battlefield.

Villa Gax to Juarez.
General Francisco Villa, commander of the rebel forces, with Ramon Madro, brother of the late president, arrived at Juarez from Chihuahua, to be in closer communication with the situation at Ojinaga. "My advice is that the Federals at Ojinaga already are defeated," said General Villa. "There is no chance for their escape, except to flee to the United States, which I am confident they will do. The Federal soldiers do not want to fight because they fight only for pay. They are held in check by the volunteer generals who fear execution. Only the regular soldiers who were forced into Huerta's service can expect any money from us."

Intercomms Strife at Guaymas.
The Federals of the Guaymas garrison began fighting among themselves according to a report sent to military headquarters by General Alvarado, in charge of the insurgent outpost above Empalme. A heavy fire was heard from the outskirts of the California Gulf city late this morning. There had been no insurgent attack nor any insurgent forces within range of the Federal positions. Desertions to the rebel side have been recurring for several days.

Skirmish South of Monterrey.
Twenty Federals were killed and many wounded in three engagements Monday with Constitutionalists at Modriguez, forty-five miles south of Monterrey, according to Federal reports yesterday. A special train carrying many wounded Federals reached Nuevo Laredo yesterday morning. Constitutionalists agents say they lost nine killed and several wounded in the fighting and claim a victory.

SAYS INTERVENTION IS SURE

British Attacks in Mexico Believes That Action by the United States Is Inevitable—Force of 250,000 Men Necessary to Subdue the Country—Strong Tribute Is Paid to General Huerta.

Jacksonville, Fla., Jan. 1.—(Monten-attache of the British embassy in Washington, accredited to the British legation in Mexico City, will soon arrive in Washington from Mexico City. After making an investigation for his Government he says his personal opinion is that the rebel forces, with the exception of the Zapatistas, will join the Federals in resisting intervention. Foreigners in Mexico City are in no danger, he says, except in the event of Huerta being assassinated, when the criminal element, joining the Zapatistas, might loot the city, killing foreigners, and rich natives. South of the city in Mexico City refuse to join the army because the Federal soldiers are not of the same social status. Two hundred and fifty thousand men would be required for complete intervention. Sixty thousand could take Mexico City in six weeks. The others would be required for police duty throughout the country. Cavalry would be required in large forces.

It is impossible for Huerta to put down the revolution, Colonel Gage says, unless the Federals capture the railways and build stock houses a mile apart, putting a mobile army in the field. The same tactics were used in the British-Boer War. The railways are to be a fine body well mounted and equipped. This force in Mexico City and its vicinity numbers from 1000 to 2000 men. The new commander intends shortly to begin a campaign of extermination against the Zapatistas in the Federal district, shooting farmers suspected of nightly looting. The routes are depended upon to defend foreigners in the event of Huerta's downfall. Steps have been taken for the defense of the British legation. Foreigners and diplomats greatly respect Huerta says Gage. He saw Huerta and O'Shaughnessy talking and laughing together in a cafe. The exaggerated reports in the United States press of rebel successes have given a false and unfortunate impression in Mexico City that officials and the American public favor the rebel cause, according to Colonel Gage. The Federals have orders to respect foreigners persons and property. He understands that rebels killed a German last week shooting him from behind, and then cutting his chest open, smashed his jaw with a stone to remove the gold teeth.

The report in Mexico City that the United States Government permits arms and ammunition smuggling by rebels was personally investigated by Colonel Gage, and he was convinced the report was untrue, but the number of American troops on the border is inadequate to prevent smuggling, he said.

The state government of Zacatecas has raised a loan of $50,000 to pay the Federal troops, who were behind pay some twenty days. There is a great deal of discontent, and last week two hundred deserted, carrying away arms and ammunition. A repair train leaves Zacatecas daily, attempting to repair the railroad line, but the work is destroyed by rebels nightly. The Federal garrison in Zacatecas will not fight in the event of a rebel attack in force, says Gage. The Government will then lose eighty thousand rounds of ammunition and machine guns. Zacatecas is garrisoned by 2200 and the daily pay is $3300. Many Americans have been robbed and assaulted in the vicinity of Zacatecas by rebels.

Felix Diaz is living quietly in a hotel in Havana with two companions, afraid to go out since the attack on him.

COMPENSATION ACT BECOMES EFFECTIVE

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 1.—Compensation wage earners will receive substantial New Year's presents tomorrow, when a Workmen's Compensation act and a law limiting 55 hours weekly for women and minors in manufacturing concerns becomes effective. The measures, with a number of others affecting labor, were passed by the last General assembly.

The compensation act has aroused widespread interest and there has been some difference of opinion as to interpretations of some sections of the measure. Adopted as an optional measure, the law is under the attorney general's opinion, become compulsory. The five commissioners administering the law have advised all employers to recognize the attorney general's opinion until the courts have passed upon the exemption clauses.

In brief, the law requires employers to compensate workers for occupational injuries, regardless of liability. Death which follows an injury brings to beneficiaries compensation for a term of years with $100 for funeral expenses, injured employees receive hospital and surgical care. Weekly benefits range from $5 to $10.

The state itself, and cities and towns have assumed their own risks, on the strength of a certificate of solvency. Many large manufacturing concerns have assumed their own risks, but the greater number have accepted the law. Beginning tomorrow the working population of the state from the governor down to the humblest wage earner in a private house will be covered by the law. Churches have insured their pastors, sextons and choir.

In case of the so-called fifty-five hour law, employers are meeting it especially in the textile industries by continuing the present wage scales and in some instances by slightly increasing piece workers so there will be no loss in the pay envelopes.

ARMY ENLISTMENTS ARE AHEAD OF ALL RECORDS

Washington, Jan. 1.—An army officer connected with the recruiting service in New York announced yesterday that the records of the recruiting service for November, which have just been compiled and filed with the adjutant general in Washington, show that 2000 more young men applied for enlistment in the army than ever before in one month in a time of peace in the United States. In the thirty days of November more than 5000 men offered themselves for service at the various recruiting stations throughout the country. This increase is being maintained this month, and it is reason to believe that every organization in the army will be recruited up to full strength, a condition not known since the war with Spain.

"Now those figures don't sound bad," said the officer who told the story of the record-breaking increase in applications. "It is pretty close to his own.

The pictorial feeling was still further developed in the 16th century and lighter colors were employed to replace the deeper tones which were characteristic of the earlier windows. They did not now depend so much for their splendor upon the glazier's craft as in former times when a design from pot-metal glass could be augmented by paint but rather had they come to fall into the hands of the painter who made use of glazing to get more color into his design. Now also for the first time lead began to be looked upon as a blemish rather than as a necessary part of his more delicate work and its use was avoided as much as possible.

Technical ability was brought to a high state of development during this period and the artist became an accomplished draftsman—a master of his particular craft. The work of this later Gothic period showed beautiful drawing and delicate coloring particularly in the modeling of flesh and the selecting of glass became quite a factor in producing certain effects which the artist was quick to seize upon—those pieces which possessed accidental variations of color. Many interesting spotted shaded and variegated specimens came from the melting pot which readily fulfilled a certain need.

Out of this period emerged that of the Renaissance when painting became the dominant note—not employed to define form or to accentuate detail any longer; but to proclaim color in its own name. Naturally much of the luminous translucent color of pot-metal glass was lost that quality which gives it its charm and it became by this newer method merely a transparent surface upon which to lay pigment.

However these Renaissance painters were doing something new in their own particular way and many of their productions were superb. It is futile to compare the finished workmanship of this period with that of the naive craft of the 13th century. There is little in common between them except that the medium of both is glass and one's sympathy has either with the glazier or the painter according to one's taste for painting or pure decoration. The 16th century also established the use of channelling which was now accepted as color as well as used to blot out light. After the middle of this century more and more of the luminous quality of pure glass was sacrificed until the following hundred years found it a thing of the past and this period marks the decadence of this interesting art.

Much of the tradition of the ancient craft was lost to be rejuvenated today. At present the old secrets have been brought to light again and through improved mechanical devices many of the technical difficulties are more easily overcome and the modern artist makes use of all the known processes and their combination to get the effect for which he is striving. He accepts the beauty of pot-metal glass which has the same color all through and which is so vibrant and luminous when it fulfills his needs or he uses flash glasses which is a sheet of white or colored glass upon which a thin film of colored glass has been fused. Ancient glass possesses a more even texture at times to be greatly desired—and is eagerly sought for being softer in color. For time has quieted its tone either by exposure to weather or by adding a film of dust or cobwebs to its surface whose removal would but decrease its beauty.

Stained glass is an art connected so intimately with the church that it naturally followed the ecclesiastical fortunes and it grew and prospered accordingly. It is the art of the Middle Ages and knowledge of its history and traditions resolves itself almost entirely to the study of church windows.—Philadelphia Record.

Only Willing Recruits Taken
Secretary Garrison is licensed at the criticism which he feels has been visited unjustly on the War Department, and especially on those army officers who have to do with recruiting. "Much criticism has reached the War Department and has found its expression in Congress concerning the method used by army recruiting officers, it being represented that candidates for enlistment are brought into the army by deliberate misrepresentation. Mr. Garrison has taken the trouble to investigate the conditions and is willing to stand responsible for all claims made. He states that he does not want in the army a man who is unwilling to serve, but that the War Department has a right to a claim on every soldier in the army list to a proper return for the pay he receives.

STAINED GLASS

Idea of Glazier's Art Came From East.
The Renaissance of stained or colored glass windows has recently been greatly stimulated through the marked interest in architecture to which it is so closely allied.

Stained glass is a term which applies to glass that has been colored in the melting pot by adding to its ingredients some metallic oxide. The term as it is used generally includes painting upon glass but in reality the two processes are widely different. To paint upon a sheet of white or colored glass is one thing; to create a composition mosaic in character made up of numbers of pieces of colored glass each tint of which has been cut out of a different sheet of "pot-metal" is quite another. However since the application of the two processes of work have been used in combination.

Use many of the arts the idea of a mosaic made of translucent glass originated most likely in the East and it is said that colored glass windows were used in that marvelous monument of Eastern beauty the Church of Santa Sophia in Constantinople in the sixth century. But very few examples of early glass are left to us and there are no set rules for distinguishing their exact date; but in feeling there is always a severity of treatment both in the designs of the figure and ornament which speaks of Byzantine influence.

A few traces of these early windows are found in England but those of greater importance will remain in France and Germany—in the cathedrals of Chartres Le Mans Dijon Angoulême and the Abbey Church of St. Denis. The Germans claim that in the cathedral at Angers are to be seen the earliest windows extant those of 11th century workmanship and at Strasbourg there are portraits of certain Kings and Emperors in windows of the 12th century which were probably saved from the wreckage of the earlier church when it was destroyed by fire.

Although there are so few specimens of stained glass which can with certainty be credited to a date earlier than the 12th century there are enough to prove that by the 12th century the craft was sufficiently developed to show that it had long been known and practiced. But it was in the 13th century that stained glass windows attained their first great development—perhaps the greatest they ever knew—for though the products of that period may see mercurial in execution to our eyes and their designs archaic they have never been surpassed for depth of color and vibrant brilliancy for allying themselves more harmoniously to the architecture to which they should be a part and for imparting an impression of reverence and solemnity.

Indeed never did the glazier have a greater appreciation of glass and its translucent quality or a deeper knowledge of its treatment and though the names of the masters of those days have been lost to us their work remains as evidence that they had raised their craft to a high art.

The glazier's craft was especially pronounced in all early windows for they were mosaic in design made up of innumerable small pieces of pot-metal glass all of which were outlined and held together by leaded strips. Paint was used but sparingly not for the sake of color but mainly to subdue or blot out light. It was made entirely subservient to pot-metal glass and was often employed to assist the leads to define outlines or accentuate or portray details which were absolutely impossible to depict by the use of pure glass alone. Leading was not only of mechanical value but was used to define forms and heighten the brilliancy of the colored lights between.

After these early 13th century windows the history of the development of stained glass is very interesting but too intricate and subtle to speak of here except in a very brief way. The 14th century brought a change in design and treatment. There came a desire for more light and the design had to all very differently shaped windows but the marked divergence lay in the tendency toward the pictorial presentation of a theme. The glass painter was beginning to come into

THE FINEST LAXATIVE IN THIRTY CENTURIES

Kollogg's Tasteless Castor Oil is Truly Tasteless—Not Flavored Or Disguised.

For 3,000 years castor oil has been the world's best laxative, but until now an offensive, sickening taste has limited its use. For 3,000 years chemists have tried to remove the taste. Kollogg's Tasteless Castor Oil is just what the name means—a pure, clear refined oil without any taste. It is the newest product of Spencer Kollogg & Sons of Buffalo, large refiners of vegetable oils.

Anybody can disguise the taste of castor oil by mixing it with alcohol, wintergreen, peppermint, or other flavors, but it remained for the Kollogg's to keep the oil pure and make it tasteless. Kollogg's Tasteless Castor Oil works even better than the old, evil dose without pain or griping. Children take it easily.

Sold now in all drug stores, 25c and 50c. Ask for Kollogg's Tasteless and look for the trade mark—a green castor leaf bearing the Kollogg signature. Made only by Spencer Kollogg & Sons, Inc., Buffalo, N. Y. oil refiners.

LOCAL DASHES

The ice dealers are beginning to measure the ice in the ponds. A few more days like this and cutting will be in order.

Thursday morning and also the day was the coldest of the present winter. It was but a few degrees above zero early in the morning.

Four young boys who made the trip from Lynn on a truck Wednesday and then missed the truck going back were picked up in the freight yard early Thursday morning by Officers Murphy and Anderson. Their ages ranged from 12 to 14 years and they were nearly frozen when found. They were detained at the police station during the day and sent back to Lynn on the afternoon train. Two were very fresh youngsters and greatly in need of home discipline.
